Kinship House provides essential education to leading agencies working with Oregon foster children, provides local educators, legal professionals, child welfare workers, CASA volunteers, mental health providers, and involved community members with skills and information to improve service systems and direct services to foster children. The three primary goals are to increase professional knowledge to improve program access and delivery, develop participant skills through implementation of best practices, and provide specific education in regard to minority disproportionality exhibited within the foster system. We create education programs on a variety of critical subjects including teaching best practices and providing research updates for the treatment of foster children who are victims of trauma, neglect, fetal exposure to alcohol and other drugs. This program aids professionals to implement creative solutions in support of foster children.
